looking for a good time?

WANT MORE FROM YOUR BACHELORETTE party than just beer chugging and boy chasing? Then throw yourself a Bride's Night Out bash, a customized girls' night hosted by a professional comedian who leads your whole group—not just the bride—through a series of wacky challenges and racy games, like serenading a stranger or asking random men to autograph various body parts. "Having someone who is funny for a living run the party really revs everyone up for a great night," says Pamela Yager, the professional comedian and sex educator who created the BNO concept. "There's no downtime or uncertainty with a personally designed, professionally produced event. Everyone has a blast from start to finish."

Each BNO party kicks off with a "roast" of the bride (written especially about her from details provided by a sly bridesmaid or friend) before hitting her favorite restaurants and clubs, where there's never any waiting in line since Yager's company, Arc Entertainment, takes care of all arrangements in advance. For about $700, the event includes a professional performer, a stretch limousine, customized games, props, the personalized roast, gifts for the bride, favors for the guests and four game prizes. And since Yager works with over 500 comedians and performers nationwide, BNO parties are available almost everywhere.
